BOSTON CATHOLIC TELEVISION: THE FUTURE

Father Bob Reed is a priest of the Archdiocese of Boston and the Director of Boston Catholic Television, the largest diocesan television station in the country (www.catholictv.org). A life-long resident of Swampscott, Father Reed was educated at St. John's School in his home parish and St. John's Preparatory School in Danvers. He studied for the priesthood at St. John's Seminary in Brighton and completed graduate studies at the Pontifical North American College in Vatican City. Father Reed also studied Broadcast Administration at Boston University School of Communication. After having been ordained a Catholic priest in 1985, Father Reed served in parishes in Quincy, Malden, Norwood, Dorchester, Haverhill and most recently as pastor of Holy Ghost Parish in Whitman. Father Reed is also the Director of Radio Programming for the Archdiocese of Boston.
